In Honor of Black History Month: "Remembering the Homeless" A POEM @ Long Beach City/ Council Meeting

February 2016

From Shirley J. Broussard/The Swarm Group & Associates Inc.

As I travel my course of life, I have questioned the reasons for some of the strife. This group's demand; that groups need for a stand. When younger, I wondered why one group would want to distinguish themselves in a land that represents all peoples? I was told it's not enough to be part of God's creation; it is not enough to be an American.

Negroes want America to never forget, they were taken, beaten and sold to be here. Mexicans say we weren't called aliens while we were helping build Americal Indians say admit it America, we were here first, swindled with a drink and a smile. Jews say never forget America what Hitler did to us in AUSCHWITZ, and anyone else, EVER ANYTIME, ANY PLACE; FOR ANY REASON! Asians are still trying to assimilate, quietly waiting to take their place, in America.

Being of African, Indian and French and Jewish decent I have found, that if I tried to be loyal, these are too many memorials to oblige. But yet and again I have looked across the lawn and there stood another group seeking fair treatment and respect:

The Homeless are the New Negro; shipped, stripped and whipped; then sole in America. The Homeless are the New Indian, for which an apology and a handshake is not justice. The Homeless are the New Jew, who escaped from Auschwitz, now home in America. The Homeless are the New Mexican, God has ordered, that they get their land back. The Homeless in many cities are White folk, singing: "This Land Is My Land" America

Across the green grass of my life, I have found that the Homeless are a part of all these people, they represent all nations, now wondering the streets IN America!

So, while some Negroes detest being called nigga, by others, and use the word all too freely among family and friends; just telling the truth. In closing black history month, I'm using more of this free speech to voice a new opinion: Be of good cheer Black Folks! The homeless, from where I stand, are being treated as the NEW Niggas; the beat down- beat up, abused, murdered, feared, despised, rejected; Overlooked, exploited, even pimped for money they've never seen; Side stepped and ignored by many of all races. But living in houses, you can't feel their pain and certainly not hear them complain. Oh their neighbors have stood up to complain: They have said The AIRPLANE NOISE IS TOO LOUD.
