An aerial photograph of a coastal port area. The foreground shows a large body of water with a long pier extending into it. In the middle ground, there are several industrial facilities, including what appears to be a large shipyard or dock with multiple berths. The background shows a densely populated city with a hilly coastline. The overall scene is a mix of natural and developed landscapes.

A photograph of a red buoy in the water. Several seals are resting on the buoy, and several cormorants are perched on its surface. The background shows a dark, wooded shoreline.

Wildlife

Increase diversity, population of species

An aerial photograph of a large port facility. In the foreground, a vast container yard is filled with rows of colorful shipping containers (red, yellow, blue, and white) stacked on a paved surface. To the right, a large cargo ship is docked at a pier, with its reflection visible in the calm water. In the background, more port infrastructure, including cranes and additional ships, can be seen under a clear sky.
