Marketing Overview Fiscal Year 2022-2023

The Long Beach CVB's Marketing & Advertising efforts and budgeted funds are dedicated to robust campaigns and promotions aimed at pleasure travel and convention/meeting business.

Marketing and promotional efforts are concentrated within the CVB's Marketing and Communications departments, with monies directed to traditional advertising (paid, placed ads with media and trade outlets), content marketing (internally created promotional content shared across social media and web platforms, as well as user-generated content by strategically selected, paid influencers), and media/public relations.

Advertising

Leisure: Fiscal Year 2022-23 will build and expand on the success of the CVB's summer marketing campaigns established in FY 21-22. The CVB is participating in Visit California's "What If' California Campaign for 2023, with the state organization committing to a dollar-fordollar cash match, as well as added value and matching contributions from partner channels, close to doubling the CVB's investment.

Through this co-op, Visit Long Beach advertisements will appear on major channels such as TripAdvisor, YouTube, SpotX and Adara. Based on past performance data, these were the best performing outlets: Youtube and SpotX showed a 97% completion rate on all videos run, and TripAdvisor and Adara outperformed their competition 3 to 1. By using data from over 300 partnering travel companies, Adara identifies travelers who are actively searching to book trips in Southern California. Once they are identified, Visit Long Beach advertisements appear on these travelers' search pages as an option for their next vacation.

The Long Beach CVB also places advertisements with local media, including the Long Beach Post, Long Beach Business Journal, Press-Telegram, and Grunion Gazette, to reach the staycation market.

- Meetings: For convention/meeting industry advertising, the CVB is increasingly focused on digital platforms, including through third-party meeting planner sites such as CVENT, Conference Direct, Convene USAE, and Northstar. Approximately 69% of the CVB's advertising spend is on digital platforms. Targeted ads are also placed on channels that are highly used throughout the industry, including LinkedIn, Facebook and Instagram. The CVB continues to place print advertisements in select, highly-respected and well-read industry publications; these include PCMA's Convene, Meetings & Conventions Magazine and Successful Meetings. The CVB also runs print ads with the local Long Beach Business Journal to reach the local market and inform the community about upcoming events.
- Advocacy Marketing: In order to keep residents, city staff and elected officials informed as to how important tourism is to the city, we will place print and digital ads with the Long Beach Post and the Gazette Newspapers. The messaging will focus on jobs created, the amount of funds generated and total investment in the city as a whole.

Content Marketing

In addition to traditional advertising, the CVB's is highly focused on its award-winning content creation strategy — in 2022, the CVB was recognized at Visit California's Poppy Awards for the Best Content Marketing in the State of California. An in-house staff with strong backgrounds in publishing, social media, and web management, create new content for a variety of platforms. Leaning into the heavyweight marketing power of social media and digital channels, the focus for Visit Long Beach platforms will center on "expertise, authority, and trust" – the "EAT" content marketing principle pioneered by Google to measure the intrinsic value and trustworthiness of web content.

Original content with hyper local expertise will be promoted across social media channels to attract day travelers and overnight visitors by showcasing what sets Long Beach apart as a destination. Videos and listicles (short articles in a list format) will invite viewers to imagine themselves experiencing our unique Long Beach vibe, food scene, cultural offerings, attractions, activities and more—and in a bite size, palatable format. Content production and sharing will be ramped up in the spring and summer months, with consistent publishing year-round.

User Generated Content

The CVB will host well-known and highly-followed writers, bloggers, and influencers to Long Beach to experience curated itineraries that incorporate shops, eateries, and experiences unique to our destination. They will create compelling stories to be shared on a variety of platforms, including travel and lifestyle blogs/vlogs, local regional and publications, social media platforms, etc., to their wide and diverse audiences. In addition, the CVB will produce in-house content and work with diverse local talent to create photography and videography depicting the city's cultural offerings, architecture, activities, special events, dining, shopping, and destination drivers.

Website/Digital Support

As the go-to source of information about Long Beach for visitors, VisitLongBeach.com will be regularly updated to stay ahead of trends and showcase new content, with ongoing support by web developer Tempest. Additional web support includes microsites and special custom websites for clients and community events. Also key, tracking software and metrics will continue to aid the organization in assessing its digital reach and PR performance. Website and digital support efforts and services include: website hosting costs; tracking, reporting and analytics; web forwarding and URLs; and Google Ad Words for brand awareness (pay per click, keyword ads, display network ads and re-targeted ads).

Fam Tours/Press Tours

The CVB hosts Fam Tours and Press Tours targeting leisure travel and events. Our in-house team will coordinate all public relations requests and proactively work to pitch the press on stories related to special events, conventions, holidays, attractions, and places to visit in Long Beach. The CVB arranges for journalists and influencers to stay in the city and experience its attractions, activities, dining, and shopping, covering associated costs. The team will combine efforts with Visit California to increase awareness of Long Beach. We will be attending the Visit California media trips held in San Francisco and Los Angeles, where we hold meetings with journalists and influencers and secure press trips and future coverage of the destination. Additionally, the CVB will attend IMM, the premiere national conference for travel media seeking stories about destinations.
